

"Son" as rendered in Mallouhi's, Al-ma'ana Al-SaHIH Li Injil Al-masIH, or, "The True Meaning of the Gospel of Christ" (back translation and chart by Adam Simnowitz)

Below is a chart of various occurrences of "Son" as found in the Gospels and Acts. It should be noted that the parenthetical statements after "Son" are included in the body of the Arabic text as is done with the phrase "Son of God." These parenthetical statements are given as further explanation of the meaning(s) of this word. The reader should pay attention to the inconsistent renderings of these explanatory meanings. The similar chart on "Son of God" should be read in conjunction with this paper.

The following footnote is given in conjunction with this word:

Acts 13:33, p. 469, footnote 2: The Apostle* Paul is here quoting from the Psalms, i.e. Psalm 2:7. The phrase, "I have begotten you," in the honorable* Gospel [meaning the New Testament] does not point to a physical birth of our Master Jesus nor to his divine origin, but it points to his crowning as king. The Apostles* used this metaphor in their speaking about the crowning of the Messiah-King as appears in Psalm 2, Isaiah 9:6, Psalm 110:3 (in the Greek translation), and implied in the book of 2 Samuel 7:12-14. The birth of our Master Jesus had already begun with this aforementioned metaphorical concept, from the moment he was raised* from the dead, then was completed through his ascension to his throne in Heaven. Our Master Jesus certainly did not come into existence at the time of his birth by that meaning [of the phrase], just as he did not take on his divine nature at that time, but is the Word of God and His wisdom from eternity. [His] birth then points to his crowning as Messiah-King. Although he is called king prior to that, it had not yet been publicly announced, as his crowning in Heaven had not yet been completed.

*Koranic terms are used. While the word for "raised" is not problematic, the word for "apostle(s)" as the idea of "sent one(s)" is lost to the Arabic reader by use of the Koranic word. Unfortunately, the correct Arabic word for "apostle" or "messenger" (rasul) is the same word used of "Muhammad." In this case, as with so many other important theological words, Islam has co-opted this word and redefined it.
